

RICHARD COLLIN MA FRCS

Richard Collin was the senior oculoplastic surgeon at Moorfields Eye Hospital and an honorary consultant ophthalmic plastic surgeon at Great Ormond Street Hospital for Sick Children, both appointments being in London. He trained separately both in ophthalmology and plastic surgery in the United Kingdom and did an oculoplastic fellowship in San Francisco. He was made an honorary professor of ophthalmology by University College London (UCL) in 2008. He has been past president of both the British and European Ophthalmic Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery Societies. He is a member of the Editorial Board of Orbit and Clinical and Experimental Ophthalmology and is a member of various national and international ophthalmology and oculoplastic surgery societies. He has written 3 textbooks, given more than 20 named lectures and published over 200 articles as well as various book chapters on oculoplastic subjects. Although he has retired from the National Health Service he continues in active practice operating, lecturing and teaching oculoplastic surgery.